

Guidelines to Authors of Newsletter Articles

Transportation Planning Division (TPD) Newsletter
American Planning Association

We are always looking for well-written, interesting articles that will appeal to our readership--transportation planners. Previous issues can be seen on the TPD website (www.apa-tpd.org).

Below are guidelines for TPD newsletter articles.

*We publish many types of articles, including

- Case studies
- Articles highlighting a particular transportation mode
- Articles on transportation policy or funding
- Innovative ideas or approaches
- Opinion or "soapbox" articles
- Announcements

*In general, articles should fall within the range of 500-2000 words, but we can be flexible.

*A picture (or other illustration) is worth a thousand words. Please provide captions for all photos and graphics.

* Please avoid using your article as a means of actively marketing your firm. We want to highlight the great work being done in the field, but we want to remain credible to our readership.

Thank you for your interest! We look forward to reading your article.

Catherine Duffy

Editor, TPD Newsletter
Catherinemarie.duffy@gmail.com